FLARE

NEWSLETTER

April 2013

As the editor of this magazine I see my job is to edit and put this magazine together, I don't consider myself the author, I was kind of hoping that a member would contribute a few words on the excellent workshop we had by Paul Randall "Nature/Wildlife Photography" (27/3). I even had an image taken on the night to go with it.

This is another thing that I need from members "your images". It would be good to also include a few details like equipment and settings used, I will always include the makers name. I won't be contributing any words to this month's workshop as I'm the one doing the presentation. The subject of which will be "Lighting for Studio and Still Life" (24/4). This will include a chance for you to take some images so bring along your camera. The usual fee of $5 for members and $10 non-members to cover the cost of the venue applies. Please read the "From the Committee" report as it has something else about workshops and the venue. Till next month (Contributions Please).

From the Committee

- The Club Box/Case for transporting prints is still missing, does anybody know who has it or where it is?
- We have a few members willing to help with the future National Photographic exhibition all we need is someone willing to take over as the co-ordinator. We need someone willing to steer the ship and delegate the tasks.
- Results of this years interclub with Geelong in this months Flare. (Sadly we lost)
- We need more ideas for workshops especially for May and June. Please speak to any committee member about your ideas.
- Exhibition space is being made available at the Masonic Hall (for six images at a time). The images have to be mounted to 16 x 20" and will be have to be framed. It is optional for the images to be sold. If an image is sold with a club frame the cost of the frame goes to the club (POA to the club website). It will be hung based on a first come first up basis with a rotation every month. This may change if it becomes too popular. Labels about the maker/price etc will be made available.

No digital report as it was cancelled (Easter Monday)

Betty Recovering

While I have been house bound recovering from my knee replacement I have spent some time surfing the net .Here is a list and explanation of my current favourite sites.

Pinterest: <http://pinterest.com/>

A sharing site where you can browse by interest type, ie photography, gardening. Fellow members post photos and short stories explaining their images. You can "pin it" and return at any time to review that item. You can put like minded pieces of information in sections. To view this site you have to create an account and log in with a password.

500px: <http://500px.com/>

Jamie suggested this photo sharing site to me. It has the most inspiring images to view. When you first log in you are greeted with the popular page. Each image is available to view in a high resolution and full screen. Again you can search by interest type. Check out the fantastic birds, wow. This like all these sites is international, so there is a variety of birds that we aren't familiar with, making them all the more interesting.

Photique: <http://www.photique.com.au/>

This site is the brainchild of Nick Rains and follows their travels around the world on their photography excursions. It has, as do all these sites have an "app" you can download giving you quick access to their sites. You can also set it to automatically update when they post new material. Basically these sites are polished blog sites. Photique has a unique way of navigating the site and is really informative geographically and photographically. As you would expect the images are top class and there are tutorials related to the images. Some of the content you need to purchase but the free stuff is well worth investigating. I believe a couple of our members have been on excursions and tutorials with Nick Rains and Christian Fletcher.

Improve Photography: <http://improvephotography.com/>

This is the final site I will mention. <http://improvephotography.com/> They are not hung up on expensive gear or brand names of camera and lenses. These podcasts you can download and listen to at any time. They are 18 podcasts to listen to with a new one available weekly. Here is a list of some of the questions fellow photographers ask.

Winter photography and overcoming ambient light with flash. Light meters and how to price a wedding. Lens recommendation and backing up your photography. These chaps communicate in a fun manner.
